Greater Confidence in Commercial Circles Leads to Higher Prices-Local Markets Stendy.

At New York yesterday money on call was firm at 576 per cent.; last loan, 5; closed at 506 per cent.

Sterling exchange was easier, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84 for demand and $4.811404.82 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.8274,8312 and $4.84\274.86; commercial bills, $4.80.

An increased demand for cash gold is reported by bullion dealers without a perceptible change in the premium. Nevertheless buying other than by professionals was the exception. Announcement was also made of a further engagement of about $800,000 in gold for import to this country, although experts on the exchange figured that the advance Monday to 2% per cent. in the London discount rate preciuded imports on a regular extraction. rate precluded imports on a regular ex-change basis at above $4.83% for actual demand sterling.

The exchange market was slightly easier yesterday, actual demand being offered in some instances at $4.84 net. Bankers gensome instances at $4.84 net. Bankers generally are disposed to put out time money for other than periods of nine months and one year, while borrowers are more concerned regarding short-time accommodations. There is some comment over the extremely light return flow of funds to New York city that was forwarded earlier for crop-moving purposes. The gains among the usually inactive shares were notable, including St. Paul preferred, which sold at 124, and Rubber preferred at 68½, as compared with respective closing bids Monday of 120 and 63. The closing was strong at the best figures, and showing net gains of 163 points.

Transfers, 8; consideration WHY BRYAN WILL BE BEATEN. Estimate of the Situation by a Former Cleveland Organ. Springfield Republican. Notwithstanding the amazing victories for the Republicans in Vermont and Maine and the failure of the Democrats of Arkansas to make material gains, there are, nattrally, many people who regard the result of the November election with deep concern and fear. While overconfidence is to be deplored, to be panie-stricken is folly. Four years ago we confidently expected the election of Mr. Cleveland, and to-day we are, if not so confident, then nearly so, that Mr. Bryan will be beaten. Now, why? Consider, first, the obstacles that the new Democracy must overcome in order to Since the early municipal elections of 1893 down to the Maine election last week the people in all parts of this country, save in some portions of the South, whenever they have gone to the polls, have shown an overwhelming aversion to Democracy in every form or guise. The Republican victories of 1894 were phe nomenal, and again they were in 1895, and still again, so far as held, in 1896. If you were a dabbler in physics you would say that those constant victories showed a very powerful uniform rectilinear motion, which we will simply call momentum. The momentum acquired by the Republican party during the past four years is tremendous, and, so far as any test has been applied, it has not shown diminishing energy. For Bryan to win it must be wholly overcom within the brief space of four or five months. The attempt to destroy that momentum and to set the political forces of the counis past. Let us analyze the case more closely. The Republican party has not been Oats opened to tame affair, and Republican success would have been a foregone conclusion, in view of the hard times and the disasters which have come upon the Cleveland administration. As the party of the opposition the Republicans, under the conditions prevailing, would have surely swept triumphantly into power. But what happened as the result of the St. Louis and Chicago conventions? An extraordinary thing. publicans assumed the position of the administration so far as its financial policy was concerned, and to that extent lost the character of the opposition, while the Dem-ocratic party, by repudiating its own Presfinancial policy, endeavored to assume the attitude of an opposition that had been wholly irresponsible for the financial Dec. government of the Nation. Thus the Democratic party tried to swap places with the Republican, and to throw upon that party the burden which it had hitherto itself. In a measure this remarkable coup succeeded, but did it succeed enough?

The obstacles in the way of such a transferrence of party responsibility as is necessary to elect Bryan seem too formidable to be overcome. He would inevitably be elected, as Mr. Cleveland was four years ago, had the Republicans actually been in power, but the simple fact that they have not been cannot be forgotten or ignored, especially by Republican voters themselves. Such voters, east of the Missouri river, if not further West, cannot fail to be moved by their belief in protection; at least, their convictions as to the tariff must operate powerfully to keep them in line. If they have leanings toward the silver doctrine those leanings must be stronger than their protection leanings; and where does Mr. Bryan expect to find these voters, without whose support he will be overwhelmingly defeated? He expects to find them in States that, in 1894 or 1895, went Republican by enormous pluralities, such as Michigan,

Illinois, Iowa and Indiana. It should be admitted freely that the hope of Republican conversions in the middle West is much better based than it could have been in New England, if for no other reason than that while in Maine and Vermont the silver propaganda was but weeks old, in those States of the Missis-sippi valley it is at least three years old. It should be freely admitted, too, that Bryan will make inroads on the old Republican vote of that important region; yet is it pos sible for him to gain recruits enough to overcome not only the protection senti-ment and everything we describe broadly as the great Republican momentum of the immediate past, but also this defection of gold Democrats from the ranks of his own party? This revolt is truly formidable if t succeeds in doing no more than to de-flect three votes from Bryan in every town n Illinois, since the Democratic candidate in view of the other obstacles he must overcome, needs every single vote he can obtdin. Ten thousand Democratic votes for Palmer and Buckner in Illinois alone would make a terrible handicap for Bryan. Nor do we omit to consider the Populist vote which will doubtless he can collidate for which will, doubtless, he cast solidly for the fusion candidate. Including that and Republican defections, the odds still to be overcome by the Democracy seem insur-mountable. If we offset Republican defections by Democratic defections, as we have a perfect right to do, it will require more than the Populist vote to carry Illinois for Bryan. In 1884 in a State election, while the Populists cast about 60,000 votes the Re-publicans led the Democrats by 123,000 votes. In view, therefore, of the political history of the country to date since 1892; of the enormous difficulties in the way of turning in its course a party momentum which has attained the rush of a mountain torrent, and of the Democratic defection in pivotal States, it now seems to be a ques-tion only of how Mr. Bryan will finish. If he should win, it would be a victory un-precedented and unparalleled in the whole history of popular government, and would conclusively demonstrate the fact that the forces agitating the American people are powerful beyond the conception of the ordinary mind. It is true, indeed, that our recent politics since 1888 is a record of rapid and amazing somersaults in public opinion, and that record may justify the belief of some observers that another somersault more amazing than all previous ones is soon to be witnessed. The American people are an amaz-ing people and may be capable of it; yet we can see but slight reason for anticipat ing it. By the time election day arrives the majority will have decided that if we must experiment at all during the next four years. McKinley is the safer man to ex-periment with and the gold standard the safer to experiment upon.

$1,000,000 for Buncombe B. Gauze.

British gold is making its way to Indi-ma. The Rothschilds have offered $1,000,000 for the Hon. Buncombe B. Gauze, the editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel. They want to kidnap him to Europe. There they will build a museum around him, give him silver rattles to amuse himself with, and entertain their guests by allowing them to se him eating mares' nests in all styles. But the infernal plot has been exposed. The Hon. Buncombe B. Gauze is not a man to be intimidated by gold-bug threats or bought by British gold. His clarion voice will not cease to denounce the infamous intrigues of the money power, and he will continue to punch the hydra head of corruption. The Hon. Buncombe B. Gauze is

WHEAT STILL RISING

DECEMBER FUTURES TOUCHED 70 7-8C AT CHICAGO YESTERDAY.

All Foreign News Indicates Large Demand for American Crop-Provisions Some Lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 .- Wheat to-day sold to the best price of the year, December touching 70% at one time. To the surprising strength shown by the Liverpool market was due most of the advance. Heavy realizing created a reaction later, but the December option scored a 11sc advance on the day. Corn and oats both shared in the prevalling prosperity and advanced %e each. Provisions were the only commodities to decline, pork, lard and ribs showing reductions of 212 Gic.

Wheat started with a jump of about 1%c per bushel, but to the disgust of many of the bulls who had sold their long wheat yesterday. The sudden advance was principally because of the strength with which the Liverpool market had started. Both wheat and corn in Liverpool opened at 1d advance on yesterday's closing prices. This rise indicated independent reasons for higher prices, which was partially explained by a cablegram saying it was due to speculation. To the news of yesterday, too, was due part of the strength. With an acknowledged shrinkage in our own crop of nearly 60,000,000 bushels from last year, an admitted shrinkage in Russia of 57,000,-600 and over 20,000,000 in Argentine, steady; prime, October, $5.40. with the news of disaster to the wheat crops of India and Australia, there is no longer room for reasonable doubt that America will be called on for larger contributions than usual to the world's supply, with the ability to respond less than usual. The range of prices at the opening was a wide one. December sold at from 70% to 70%c delivery, sparingly at the extremes, but heavily at from 70% to 70% c. The crosing price yesterday was 69% c. The figures given marked almost the entire range of the forenoon's fluctuation, the only exception being a dip to 70% e as the cuminating point of a gradual reaction which set in after the opening splurge, but that was fol-lowed by a second rise to 70%c before 12 o'clock. The principal bearish factor was again the heaviness of the domestic receipts. Chicago got 347 cars and Minneapoils and Duiuth together 1,433 cars, against 1,289 a week ago and 1,446 on the corresponding day of the year before. Bradstreet's visible supply statement showed an increase in the world's stocks of 6,308,600 bushels. This was heavier than expected and caused temporary slight depression in the ket. The effect of that was dispelled by the strength of the closing cables, and encouraged by that strength there were plenty of buyers on every soft spot. The price of December had numerous fluctuations between 10%c and 70%c, and finally rested at 70% (2002). 70% a70% c, or 1% c rise for the day. The re-selling of some 65,000 bushels taken some days ago for export created a slightly opened 1d higher than it closed yesterday. The first few minutes of the session showed a rise of 1c in the price of May, but sellers became too numerous for such a considerable and sudden advance to hold. The adtry in motion in the opposite direction has been attempted and is now being pursued with an audacity and a desperation unparalleled. But it is bound, in our opinion, to fail, for the reason that the age of miracles is past. Let us analyze the case more

Oats opened firm, grew very strong and ir. power, bit in opposition, during the past four years, and therefore, under the natural order of things, it would bear no measure of responsibility for government dur. ure of responsibility for government during that period. Had the parties gone again before the country on the tariff issue this campaign would have been a very opened about % higher, at 20% a 20% c, advanced to 21%c and closed steady at 21c.
Provisions opened with a strong bullish feeling due to the stronger hog market and the firmness developed in grain, and prices advanced rapidly. But enormous offerings by packers and English houses caused a decided reaction, and the close was at slightly lower prices. January pork closed 5c lower,

January ribs .0214c lower, at 4.0714c.
